VENEZUELA | 2015

UPDATED: ENE, 14 2015

DEAR CLIENTS

VENEZUELA is a country with an impressive variety of sceneries. Due to both the ecological and scenic importance over 20% of the territory is protected under different laws as National Parks.

In many of these Parks and private Natural Reserves, an important infrastructure of camps and guesthouses have been developed offering ecotourism and adventure programs.

Canaima, Gran Sabana and Angel Falls, Orinoko Delta, Los Roques, Morrocoy, Amazonas, Los Llanos and Merida constitute exceptional destinations for tourism and nature lovers.

Margarita Island and Puerto La Cruz offers the options of sea and beaches for relaxation and fun along with restaurants, discotheques, shops and excursions.

In this Handbook of Services for 2013 Maloka we present a wide selection of camps, guest houses and hotels at our main ecotourism and beach destinations in addition to hotels and services in our principal cities. We are sure that these can be combined to offer your individual and group passengers an excellent and varied travel program.

Yours sincerely,

Lucy Pantin

MARGARITA ISLAND

Margarita Island is an island with multiple options of hotels beaches, restaurants, night life and excursions, in addition being the doorway to visit Venezuela’s spectacular National Parks. With just over 620,000 inhabitants, Margarita shows marked contrasts between Porlamar, the commercial capital of the island, with its modern malls and Duty Free stores, and the small towns along the coast where we still find traditional architecture, where the traditional lifestyle has changed very little over the last century or two.

Camp Arekuna is located at the confluence of the Antabares and Caroní rivers in the extreme north of the Park. The installations are on a small hill one hundred meters from the Caroní's beach. The banks of the Antabares River that flows into the Caroní are covered with forests. This vegetation surrounds the camp as do the Orinoko savannas, typical of the Macizo Guayanés mountains. The Pemon Indians of the Arekuna tribe live in this region. From the Arekuna observation points the magnificent view of the Pemon's sacred mountains called Tepuyes can be taken in. These imposing rock formations are the oldest in the world, and have obtained their characteristic tabletop shape through millions of years of constant erosion. Due to this the ecosystems found here are unique and the panoramas exceptional. The camp's dining room has a spectacular view of the Caroni River. The camp offers 30 ample rooms with private bath, all with large windows overlooking the Caroní River.

This excursion is combination full of magic. First we fly to Maturín or Tucupita from there we take a bus to the quay where we board a native boat to navigate the channels of the immense Delta. On this trip we enjoy the jungle in all its splendor until we reach the camp. During our stay in the Delta we'll walk in the jungle, fish for piranhas, observe the flora and fauna and have the opportunity to appreciate the native Warao communities. The following day we fly to Canaima National Park and fly over Angel Falls then go on a spectacular excursion to El Sapo falls or El Hacha falls, and a boat ride in the lagoon in a "curiara". Includes: Transfers, flights, flight over Angel Falls (weather permitting), FB and excursions described.

National Park

■ LOS ROQUES

ARCHIPELAGO LOS ROQUES NATIONAL PARK

The Los Roques archipelago is located in the Caribbean Sea to the north of Caracas and west of Margarita Island. It is made up of 52 keys and small islands. Abundant tropical fauna including fish, crustaceans and mollusks are found in the surrounding transparent, multicolored waters. El Gran Roque is permanently inhabited with a population of approximately 1,500 inhabitants. Artisan fishermen during their fishing campaigns only temporarily inhabit the rest of the islands. The inns are located on El Gran Roque. This is also the starting point for excursions to the islands, diving, fishing, and windsurfing.

The colorful inns, or guesthouses, make Gran Roque a very picturesque spot. Although they are built in the same architectonic style each has its own distinctive touch in the way it is decorated. The rooms are equipped with ceiling fans and all have private bath with shower.

The inns offer different plans for meals and excursions giving the passenger greater freedom to plan his stay at the most convenient cost. Nowadays there are several options regarding restaurants and companies offering excursions, diving and fishina. These can be purchased through us or directly on Los Roques.

LODGES (Net prices in USD per person, includes taxes, subject to change).

National Park
CANAIMA-GRAN SABANA

CANAIMA NATIONAL PARK

The Canaima National Park, is located in the south of Venezuela, with a vast territory of jungles and savannas surrounded by countless rivers which generate imposing waterfalls, from the Tepuyes (impressive rocky mountain formations). The Pemon Indians live in the plains in small communities dedicated to hunting, fishing, small scale farming, and handicraft making. In this National Park there are camps from which different excursion programs are offered. They basically consist in navigating the rivers in typical native canoes and walks through the jungle accompanied by expert guides.

ORINOKO DELTA

The Orinoko Delta is a huge swampland covered with thick virgin jungle, home to a variety and abundant tropical fauna. Countless numbers of canals cut through it flowing water from the Orinoko River, the largest in Venezuela, to the Atlantic Ocean. The Warao natives live in small communities that have remained unchanged for hundreds of years on the shores of these canals. They occupy themselves collecting fruit, cultivating small areas, hunting and fishing.

■ LOS LLANOS

LOS LLANOS

The Venezuelan Llanos or plains extend to the south of the coastal mountain range and Los Andes. They are immense plains with a marked difference in the panorama in the rainy season and the dry season. During the rains, great extensions are flooded and in the dry season water is confined to small lagoons, where abundant and varied wildlife congregates. The big cattle ranches are located in this region. In some of these programs have been implemented to protect the fauna and hunting is prohibited. For this reason, and the managing of the water to avoid extreme flooding and droughts, these places are ideal to observe the fauna. The best time of year is the dry period between December and April.

■ LOS ANDES

LOS ANDES

The Venezuelan Andes are located in the best of the country and rise from the plains and the south of the “Lago de Maracaibo” to a height of over 5000 mt. The highest peak is Pico Bolívar at 5007 mt. above sea level. On the ascent to the heights we observe different ecosystems that alternate according to the height and vary from the forests of piedemonte, the dwarf forests, the mountainside spotted with silk-leafed” frailejones”, the craggy rocky slopes where the vegetation is reduced to its minimum expression to the glaciers that crown the maximum heights of Venezuela.
